MANY SOLDIERS ARRESTED

ABOUT TWO HUNDRED UNDER GUARD ON CHARGE OF BURNING A SALOON AT SAN FRANCISCO.

n Francisco, April 17.-There was a riot at the ates of the Presidio last evening, where all the ops are quartered. As a result a saloon was cked and burned, and about two hundred sol diers, comprising recruits for the 18th, 21st and 23d regiments of Regular Infantry, and some privates awaiting discharges, are now under arrest, with several members of the 4th Cavalry,

The trouble began on Saturday evening. Charles King, of New-York, recruit of Company G, 23d Renfields's saloon, which is just opposite the lower residio gates. While there he became involved in row with some soldiers, and was so severely beaten that he was taken to the hospital.

On Sunday afternoon two of King's comrades, hearing that his condition was precarious, went to the saloon for the purpose of finding out how the trouble originated. The barkeeper was curt and asive in his replies. The soldiers went out and told their comrades. Last night a crowd of privates went to the saloon, threw out the barkeeper and demolished every article of furniture. By this time three hundred or four hundred soldiers had urrounded the place. In the mean time the police had been informed. and several officers appeared on the scene. They were greeted with jeers. A number of soldiers were greeted with jeers. A number of soldiers went to the rear of the saloon and set fire to it. The crowd then turned its attention to prevent the spread of the flames, and succeeded in saving the adjoining buildings.

The news of the riot had finally reached the headquarters of Colonei Freeman of the 24th Infantry, who is in command of the Presidio, and Adjuant Harris promptly ordered out several troops of the 4th Cavairy, with instructions to round up all the recruits and others in camp and keep them under guard, pending an investigation that might lead to the discovery of the leaders and participants in the riot.

lead to the discovery of the leaders and participants in the riot.

Later on, after a rolicall had been made of the men in the quarters the names of those under arrest were registered. Until a late hour a colored provost guard scoured the city in search of missing men.
Nearly all of those involved are recruits assigned to various regiments now in the Philippines. The saloon was at the Greenwich-st, entrance to the Presidio, and the loss will be about $1,500.

CROKER'S TICKET ELECTED.

NO OPPOSITION TO THE MEN APPROVED BY HIM FOR OFFICERS OF THE TAM-MANY SOCIETY.

The Tammany Society or Columbian Order, held a regular meeting last evening in the Wigwam, in rteenth-st., and elected thirteen sachems and other officers. There was no opposition to the regular ticket approved by Richard Croker, although there had been a report that ex-Mayor Gilroy and C. Sheehan intended to run another ticket The ticket elected was the following: Sachems John Whalen, John F. Carroll, Daniel F. McMahon John W. Keller, John J. Scannell, Charles F. Murphy, Randolph Guggenheimer, Maurice Featherson, Asa Bird Gardiner, John Kelly, George C. Clausen, John Fox and Thomas J. Dunn; secretary, Thomas, F. Smith; treasurer, Peter F. Meyer; sagamore, Dr. John T. Nagle, and wiskinkie, John A.

The only change among the sachems from last year was the substitution of John W. Keller for William Astor Chapler, who was said to have of-fended Mr. Croker by declaring that his own war record had more to do with his election to Congress that did Mr. Croker's leadership. The thirteen sachems will be installed on May 12, and Thomas I. Feitner probably will be re-elected grand sachem.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF WAR'S TRIP. Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn, of the War Department, and a party including Colonel A. S. Kimball, Assistant Quartermaster-General; Major Jones, in charge of transportation at New-York; Major B. B. Slaughter, of the Paymaster's Department; Major J. J. Pershing, Judge C. E. Macgowan head of the Bureau of Insular Customs and Affairs: Captain I. W. Littell, Captain H. G. Kingsof the 6th Cavalry; Congressman Foote President Reed of the New-Jersey Senate, and Colonel E. L. Glover, took a trip on the Government boat General Meigs yesterday on a semi-official tour of inspection. In the morning they went up the Hudson as far as Ninetieth-st. to look at some piers suitable for the use of the War Department, additional facilities being needed.

In the afternoon the same party, with the exception of Congressman Foote, President Reed and Colonel Glover, proceeded to Sandy Hook and inspected the mortar battery and the big guns at the proving grounds. To the Assistant Secretary's fag Fort Hancock gave a salute of fifteen guns. The party returned to the city at dusk.

AQUEDUCT GATES NOW OPEN.

AND TURF TIPS ARE FLOWING FREELY-THREE

OF THINGS HAPPENED AT THE TRACK. The Queens County Jockey Club began the racing season of 1899 in this State at the tiny Aqueduct track yesterday. Current gossip says that Brooklyn Rapid Transit will soon control every transportation line between the City Hall of Manhattan and the Eastern end of Long Island. Speed he day if the Flower Transit Trust will run quick trains to the tracks! For many years the race trains have been slower even than the leaden foet of Justice at the heels of Richard Croker. But the slowest of trains was never slower than the starter. Pettengill acted yesterday as if he had decided that racing after dark was the favorite sport of New-Yorkers. Marconi is needed in Queens County with a wireless telegraph clamp atached to the red flag. Slow starters should be sent to Spain. "Manana" suits the Spaniards, out Americans want swiftness here, there and everywhere. Mait Byrnes went to Memphis and found that he was too tardy in starting. Mr. Byrnes has a conscience. He promptly resigned his place when it was clear to him that he was too slow for the sudden issues of to-day. Will Fitz-gerald or Pettengill ever resign? Never. Matt Byrnes was not employed by the superhuman and supernatural Jockey Club of this State. amazing sublimation of celestial and colossal genius employed last year the slowest starter ever known, a starter who spoiled the Suburban, the Futurity and the Junior Champion by his slowness, and as a reward for his slowness in 1898 the slowest of starters has been reappointed for 1899. Pettengill may be slow, but he is not as inconceivably and unapproachably slow as the Jockey Club starter of 1898 and 1899. April was good to Aqueduct yesterday. Spring afternoons of better temper than that of April 17 on Long Island are not frequent. Many men and several women and troops of bookmakers came together at Aqueduct. Most of the men and a few of the women were anxious to lose their money, but the bookmakers were high-minded and con siderate, and decided to discourage betting by offer ing odds which were so forbidding that specula tion was cramped and crushed. Season after sea-

ing odds which were so forbidding that speculation was cramped and crushed. Season after season the bookmakers at Aqueduct have done all they could to suppress gambling entirely. They seek by every device to convince rash and desperate persons who are eager to back horses that the percentage in bookmaking is so largely in favor of the bookmaker and so untair to the backer of horses that speculation on a racetrack is so certain to enrich the bookmaker and to beggar the bookmaker's customer that only the witless will persist in playing the game. Nevertheless, as racing goes in this part of the world, and as betting goes in Queens County, the first afternoon of the turf season on the Atlantic Coast had in it bang enough and smash enough.

The trick of adding horses to the lists sent out to the public the night before the contests was put through thrice. L'Alouette, Futurity winner of 1897, was added in the first race, and took the honors. Poor old Harry Reed was the favorite, but was unplaced. Harry Reed was born with four useful legs, but Michael F. Dwyer, his compassionate and thoughtful owner, has treated Harry Reed with a tender and affectionate sympathy similar to that which he bestowed upon Hanover, when he was a half-owner of that superb horse. The result is that almost the only sound part of the Harry Reed of to-day is the northwest corner of his southeast ear. If Michael F. Dwyer lives long enough, and the Jockey Club sleeps soundly enough may racetracks, and so many solemn and stately and majestic Pecksniffs of the turf take themselves so seriously? Isn't it in the main a gay and merry gambling whirl and wheel like that at Monte Carlo? What is the use of pretending that it is noble and mishty and eagust? Isn't William C. Daly one of the most massive and impressive pillars of the turf in this S to it is noble and mighty and august? Int the word one of the most massive and impressive pillars of the turf in this State? And isn't the average bookmaker after all the cornerstone and the capstone and the cornice also of the racing edifice in this State? How long would racing last without the bookmakers? Then what's the use of treating the turf seriously? A few pompous persons with thick waists and thin heads talk about racing as if the world would drop apart were the tracks to be closed. But the world would still spin for many a day and many a year even if the Jockey Club were to vanish. That may seem a hard saying to certain stewards of the Jockey Club. Nevertheless it is an eternal verity, and cannot be gainsaid.

Gaze was an added starter in the third race, and Gaze was an added starter in the third race, and it was a blithesome romp for Gaze. She was well backed.

Gaze was an added starter in the third race, and it was a blithesome romp for Gaze. She was well backed.

The chief comedy of the afternoon was the Carter Handtcap, at about seven furlongs. Duke of Middleburgh was the added starter and the conqueror in that comedy. Last year Duke of Middleburgh wore the Louisville Lottery—all scarlet. He has changed hands. Alfred H. Morris, former owner of the Duke, is a sincere and zealous Democrat, and no doubt he detests "plutocratic dukedoms," as various sincere and zealous Democrats do. Mr. Morris has gained fame on the turf by his skill in seiling his best horses at small prices and helping his worst ones. He sold the Duke of Middleburgh for some petty and paltry sum, and kept in his stable horses not worth one-half as much as the Duke is worth. Mr. Morris may become the Jockey Club starter some day. He is just the man for the place.

There was a great deal of jostling and reckless riding in the Carter Handleap, but not nearly as much jostling as was seen at the Bryan dinner on Saturday night. Barleycorn, Charentus, Sir Florian and Trillo were well backed, but all of them ran poorly, and no one of them was placed. Every one of the three placed horses, Duke of Middleburgh, Dr. Parker and Bafinnock, was at a handsome price in the gambling. Taral was on Bannock who ran third, and Taral rode him well, but was unlucky more than once in the journey. Bannock hates fields of more than a half-dozen any way. Don't forget Bannock. He's a sort of a game-of-craps horse at best, but in his class he will "Come seben, come cleben" all right enough later.

game-of-craps horse at best, but in his class he will "Come seben, come eleben" all right enough later.

Marcus Daly won two races with Montanic and Sadducee. The air was full of talk about Sadducee before the fourth race, but Joseph Ulman had been reading his old Testament and neglecting the Gospels for a long time, and forgetting all about the New Testament denunciations of the Pharisees and the Sadducees, Joseph, who had left his coat of many colors at home, cried out loudly that he was ready to bet against "Sad Deuce." Sadducee was, indeed, a sad deuce for Joseph. He was a heavily backed favorite, and he took the trick.

Michael Clancey's Maximo Gomez was victorious in the last act of the diverting comedy at Aqueduct. Before that act Mr. Clancey was a Bryan votary at 16 to one. When the curtain fell he was an anti-Aguinaldo expansionist all over at one to sixteen.

The latter won a selling race, was bid up from $900 to $1,500, and was secured by the Kensico Stable. Mr. Daly is enthustastic over Hamburg, who has grown into a highly finished, magnificent-looking horse. Mr. Daly, through his agents in England, obtained twelve of the best matrons that money could buy to breed to Arthur White, in gay spring attire, was armed with what Michael Clancy termed a "double-barrelied telescope," that gave him much trouble to nanipulate, owing to the narrowness of the lawn.

YACHTING.

IT IS WHISPERED THAT THE COLUMBIA MAY FINALLY ISSUE WITH AN ALU-MINUM-PLATED UPPER BODY.

Bristol, R. I., April 17 (Special).—The yacht Defender is being prepared for the housing of the crew of the Columbia, which is expected to arrive This will not be the whole crew, but a sufficient number to rig the Defender and put her in condition for racing. It is stated that since her arrival from New-Rochelle the interior of the yacht has been much altered in making sleeping accommodations for the men, and that she now possesses a comfortable cabin. It is not yet discovered whether these cabin fittings are fixtures, or whether they can be removed in order to thoroughly "skin" the vessel for her trial races, but it is thought that the boat ought to be allowed to go into her trial races in the same condition in which she sailed against the Valkyrle. "Nat" Herreshoff stated in the Dunraven investigation that just prior to the final races he took from the Defender interior fixtures which weighed seven tons, and yachtsmen are wondering whether these have been put back, and whether the old victor will be anchored with this dead weight in her trials. Captain Job Terry is in charge of the stepping of the masts in both boats. The men in th have no doubt that the Columbia could be launched and ready by June, but since the visit of Mr. Morgan's manager last week the hurry on the craft has decreased. It is confidently said on the other side that aluminum will be used on the Shamrock, and the delay in the Herreshoffs' yards may not, as supposed, be for the purpose of secreting knowledge concerning the Columbia, but to allow time for ascertaining whether the Shamrock will aluminum or not. Certain it is that little has been done in the plating of the Columbia's upper works, and the few plates of Tobin bronze that have been put on could be easily taken off and rereshoffs have intentionally allowed information to apparently leak out so that it might be regarded certain in England that the Columbia apparently leak out so that it might be regarded as certain in England that the Columbia would be plated with the heavier material known as Tobin bronze, and that this is all part of a "bluff" to lead Fife to think he also can afford to use a heavy metal. These people think the bronze plating on the Columbia was never intended to remain, or has not been intended to remain since Mr. Iselin's latest visit, and that the American boat will appear as the second defender in which aluminum has been largely used.

The mainsalls and jibs for the two yachts, which have now been finished by Asa Hathaway and his assistants, have the after-leaches fitted for the reception of battens, to be used in the same way as on the Defender in 1895. The stem casting down near the forefoot shows a stout eye fixture, which is part of the casting. Through this eye the bobstay will be passed, to be set up taut when the boat is being rigged. The offsets for the steel boom show provision for reefing tackle and topping-lift rigging, the lifts evidently being intended to come about eighteen feet inboard from the end of the spar. The finishing touches have been made to the new steel gaff in the shops. All the roughness has been filed off, and it has been painted a gray color. It contains numerous eyebands and other fittings to which the great mainsail will be attached.

Materials of various kinds are continually arriving at the yards, and it would astonish most people to see the great variety of material that now goes into a cup-defender. Nearly all of it is metal, and it goes without saying that it is of the best, and is all helping to raise the bill. Some of the small racers are being put overboard from the north shop. There are eleven racers with seventeen and one-half feet water-line and of a knockabout rig under construction. The greater number of them are going to Buzzard's Bay and the Cape. One of them, called the Hope, is rigged and launched. Mr. Iselin, of New-Rochelle, and his son took a sail in her yesterday.

JOHN L. IN A NEW ROLE.

PUT ON ENGINEER'S CLOTHES TO ESCAPE AR-REST IN OREGON.

Astoria, Ore., April 17 .- John L. Sullivan, while here on Sunday night, was compelled to hide to escape arrest. The church people swore out a warrant on Wednesday charging him with violating the law by appearing in a boxing contest on Sunday. The warrant for the arrest of Sullivan placed in the hands of Constable Wickman, and that officer tried to serve it. Sullivan, however, had received word of the warrant, and while the performance was still going on stole quietly out of the stage entrance and made his way to his special train, which was scheduled to pull out at 11 o'clock for Victoria. Officers were at the station to arrest him, but he took refuge in the engine and thus cluded his pursuers. Sullivan donned the garments of an engineer, and was at the trottle when the train pulled out.

That professional baseball will be popular in Brooklyn this year seems assured, for in the games already played the representatives of the City of Churches and trolley-cars have demonstrated the fact that she has a team able to cope with any in the country. This is a new experience for Brooklyn of late years, and the enthusiasts hereabouts seem to like it. While Brooklyn was trouncing the champions from Boston yesterday, the New-York team was making an exhibition of itself in Baltimore with the makeshift team left in that town as a sort of "holdover." But well-posted baseball followers here will probably go to Brooklyn this year to see baseball, anyway, so that not much sympathy or regret is wasted on the mismanaged, inexpensive aggregation on this side of the East

More than five thousand spectators braved the chilly breezes to see the second meeting between the Brooklyn and Boston teams at Washington Park yesterday afternoon, Many of the spectators did not arrive in time to see the opening, as they thought the game would not start until 4 p. m. Instead, it began at 3:30. It was a well-played game, in which brilliant fleiding manœuvres were plentiful, but, as on Saturday, there was little bat-The pitchers, from their elevated position, seemed to have the batsmen at their mercy, with the result that only eight hits were made—four on each side. Dunn, the long-limbed youngster, pitched with skill and speed, and the champions in the first eight innings had only one hit to their credit, and that was a rather scratchy two-bagger which fell near the foul line in left field. Three hits were made off Dunn in the last inning, but only one of that number signalled to the onlookers what it was when it left the bat. Tenney's hit was a bunt, and Stahl's drive did not get beyond shortstop. Willis was almost as effective, except in the second inning, when the home team won the

It is a pleasure to see Tenney, the ex-Brown College man, play ball. He is as lively as a kitten, and he plays ball with head, hands and feet, and a great deal of it with his feet at that. Dablen and Daly did excellent work in their positions. Pitchers Maul and Hughes are now with the team, and they Maul and Hugnes are now with the team, and they will be able to take their turn when called upon.

The home team took the lead and won the game in the second inning. With Anderson disposed of, Dahlen was sent to first base on called balls. Mc-Gann followed with a hit to left field, and an instant later each stole a base. Daly was sent to first on called balls, filling the bases with athletes and the hearts of the onlookers with expectancy and glee. Smith was disposed of, but Dunn came forward with a timely hit to right, and won the game for his side. Dahlen and McGann scored on the drive, and a wild throw by Collins an instant the drive, and a wild throw by Collins an install later put Daly over the plate.

Brooklyn made it 4 to 0 in the eighth inning. Smith hit safely, and Dunn sacrificed him to second. Kelley's out put Smith on third, and he scored when Lowe fumbled Keeler's drive near second, base. In the pinth inning the champions. scored when Lowe fumbled Keeler's drive near second base. In the ninth inning the champions escaped a shut-out. Tenney bunted, and beat the throw to first. Lowe and Duffy were disposed of, but Collins cracked a single to centre field. Then Stahl hit down to short, and the bases were full. Lowe was sent to first on called balls and Tenney was forced over the plate. Then Dunn settled down to work, and Collins was forced at third on Bergen's drive to Dahlen, and the game was over. T. J. Keenan, jr., the president of the League of American Wheelmen, announced yesterday the ap-pointment of W. B. Curtis as the Amateur Athletic Union representative on the Racing Board of the League. Fred Gerlach has been appointed the League of American Wheelmen representative to the International Cyclists' Association. W. B. Curtis has been a well-known figure in the amateur athletic world for many years, and he has won the title of "Father of American Athletics." Mr. Curtis has always been a firm admirer of honest sport, and the opinion was expressed last night that President Keenan could not have made a wiserchoice. Mr. Curtis was the holder of many world's records, and he ascribes his splendid physical precreation to-day to taking plenty of outdoor exercise. This addition to the Racing Board not only insures the Amateur Athletic Union excellent representation, but it will strengthen the bond of friendship which has existed for so long between the two controlling associations in athletics and cycling in this country. title of "Father of American Athletics." The Century Road Club was compelled to postpone its weekly century run on account of the rain until next Sunday, when W. H. Anderson will have charge and will pace the riders over an entirely charge and will pace the riders over an entirely new course on Long Island. The popularity of these weekly trips for those who enjoy a long jaunt is unquestioned, and starting-time generally finds forty to fifty wheelmen ready and eager to enjoy the fine roads and fresh air on Long Island. There is no entry fee required, and all riders are invited to join. The start will be made from the Bedford-ave fountain. Brooklyn, every Sunday at 8 a. m., weather permitting.

Many riders were out yesterday, in spite of the rather cutting winds. The roads generally were in good condition after the rain of Sunday. Those who went to Coney Island on the Cycle Path found the trip back to Prospect Park rather laborious.

C. W. T .- To get the list of the official League of American Wheelmen hotels write to W. S. Bull, Vanderbilt Building, city. Mr. Bull can also give you full information regarding the distribution of road books for this State.
